Comments:

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? In-class discussion among upper-division majors in related topics became better as the class progressed. Comments were often informed by major studies that were not philosophy, which added realistic substance to the course.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? Because some of the students were taking the course as a professional elective, not all of them had studied any philosophy prior to the course. At least suggesting, if not actually requiring, Phil 103, Ethics, as preparation for the class would be a good idea.

Comments:

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning?
The book and readings were great!

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? I would have liked to see more reading quizzes or attendance points. I struggle with philosophy and I needed an incentive to attend this class. Discussion based classes are hard to keep people involved.

6. The instructor was helpful to me outside of class or online learning environment.	N/A (I did not seek help from the instructor outside of class)

Comments: found sources for me and was great at showing things visually as well.

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? I enjoyed the textbook that was used and I thought he brought a lot of humor and energy into a class that would otherwise be boring. I liked class discussions and how the tests were set up. I learned a lot on different view of the environment and I think it will help me to understand people outside of my field and their opinions.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? His handwriting at times can be really sloppy. Sad to hear he is not staying in Idaho. :(

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning?

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? He's one of my most favorite professors I've had the pleasure of having. You're enthusiastic, humorous, intelligent, and have a spine to hold your class accountable for not being prepared to discuss material. I still didn't read most of the material but I did feel guilty for not reading (which is rare, personally) because I thought he was a great teacher and this was an interesting class.

Comments: He was very easy to talk to and understanding because I have never taken a philosophy course.

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? Class involvement is great.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? Some of the readings were very difficult for me to understand. Granted it is a joint grad level course.

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning?
 It was a great class. I really enjoyed it. He did a good job with spiking our interests and engaging us in conversation. He was also good at not being biased which is great for a philosophy class. I loved how he didn't read off a powerpoint but instead wrote on the board.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? Nothin

5. Overall, the instructor's delivery and efforts contributed to your understanding of the course material.	SA - Strongly Agree
6. The instructor was helpful to me outside of class or online learning environment.	No
Comments: Conversational discussions about the subject, typically short readings, fairly relaxed classroom setting
7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? I am an incredibly introverted person, but I never felt pressured to answer a question or discuss something I didn't want to. I think that a lot of other introverted individuals were thankful for that as well. I am more of an active listener, and like to digest others' opinions.
8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? I think as long as people do the readings before class, our discussions are wonderful and thought-provoking. A lot of the responsibility lies within the student to learn in this course, which is how it should be of course.

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? I really liked the textbook, though of course we missed out on reading more complete works of some of the authors. I also like the structure of the class with the quizzes and the instructor was a GREAT lecturer.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? I actually had a hard time reading the professor's handwriting on the board. I have no other complaints.

Comments: He responded to emails in a timely manner and was always willing to answer any questions that would arise via email.

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? It was helpful when he reviewed previous days discussion about the philosophers as often I had forgotten by the next class period. It was also helpful when he explained what the philosophers were actually talking about before we got into an in-depth discussion so that we were all on the same page.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? Making sure to explicitly state the overarching aspects of the philosophers arguments before moving on to discussion that were only loosely related. If he had taken more time on making sure the arguments were clear the remaining conversation would have been easier to follow and contribute to.

Comments:

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? Very engaging. Very cool and refreshing to see him let the conversation go anywhere and still know how to bring it back to lessons in class. Going out in nature to learn.... Epic!

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? A better bridge between the disciplines would help philosophers and environmental students the same. Maybe mixing group activities that put philosophy majors with other or visa versa. The point I am making is that there is clear difference in understanding between the the disciplines. Philosophers spend all day working with these concepts so it is easier for us to get bored when in contrast other are bored because they dont have a clue what is going on.

Comments:
7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? I appreciated how the quizzes were an exact reflection of what we went over in class. It really helped solidify the readings and arguments. Discussion put the ideas in my mind but writing about them and getting the ideas down on paper was helpful.
8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? I'm not sure how participation was assessed, but I know that a large number of people failed to show up for the course the entire semester and so I wonder how their performance was impacted by this. Maybe a participation grade would help?

Comments: Dr. Stoutenburg is very helpful outside of class by answering any questions I had in a very respectful and non-condescending manor by answering emails very quickly.

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? Dr. Stoutenburg being enthusiastic and friendly definitely helped me. He also used modern examples to make 200 year old philosophical ideas relevant to the modern world.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? Possibly giving more, smaller assignments. There are only a few assignments that contribute to our entire grade which is quite daunting. Also, doing this would force us to learn the materials better on a weekly basis rather than trying to remember everything over the course of a few months and then having to write about it. It's been a lot of "okay here's this idea. Got it? Okay moving on." Then a month or two later we have to go back and re-read the material because it hasn't been relevant to us for so long. I fully understand however that this is one of the downsides of philosophy classes and Dr. Stoutenburg does a good job to try to prevent this.

Comments:

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? There was a good intro into the basic concepts of philosophy which was helpful to all the non philosophy majors.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? The bblearn page could have been updated more to indicate the changes in assigned readings.

Comments:
7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? The course readings with complimentary class discussion helped me make a lot of connections I may have otherwise missed. I liked how the class discussions opened me to other perspectives.
8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? I would like to have a been able to take better notes. People often made comments and I either didn't understand them or wasn't able to distinguish what part of what they said aligned with our subject. Perhaps comments should be repeated and then made remarks about. I really enjoyed the professor but his handwriting is very poor and it made it very difficult to follow along and stay focused while I was trying to decipher the handwriting.

Comments:

7. What were some positive aspects of the course that supported learning? When I understood the readings I did like the discussions in class and how it made me think about things in a different light.

8. What aspects and/or content of the course could be improved to better support learning? I had a hard time understanding the readings before they were discussed in class. I found it hard to relate to such abstract idea. I would like it if the instructor could use more real world examples. I am also a visual learner so it was hard to take notes when he would discuss 3 different subjects in 10 min but only write a few words on the board.
